PRESS RELEASE

THE PORT OF TRIESTE ADHERES TO THE #IORESTOACASA (#STAYATHOME) CAMPAIGN WITH ONLINE ACTIVITIES FOR CHILDREN AND FAMILIES

If children can't go to the Port of Trieste for educational activities, then the Port visits them at home. This is the initial message of the first of a series of online creative workshops for children that the Port Authority has made available on the Port of Trieste's social media channels, including YouTube.

The goal is to continue interacting with children and families even during the coronavirus emergency. "The port continues to work, but like everyone else we have had to cancel all of our events, including our Open Day, children's workshops, and guided visits to our historic head office at Lloyd Tower", said Port Authority President Zeno D'Agostino. "We have thus decided to adhere to the #stayathome campaign and stay in touch with the citizenry, so as to make these days filled with worry and doubt more bearable and to give children and families the gift of a smile".

The Port of Trieste's social media channels will periodically broadcast original content, workshops, videos, readings, and nursery rhymes for young children, so that the time they spend and home may be creative and pleasant, and to introduce children to the port. The first workshop by Annalisa Metus, available also in English <https://youtu.be/LEQfXfm9Q8Y> requires papers, scissors, and a lively imagination for a fun exploration of the sea, among ships and cranes, without leaving home.

Adults will be able to enjoy virtual visits to Lloyd Tower and other initiatives, all available online.

The Port of Trieste continues to work, but it is adhering to the #iorestoacasa campaign by creating online activities for young and old alike, available on our social media channels @PortodiTrieste
